New council ready to take action

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

Elk Point's new town council, Mayor Parrish Tung, new councillors Eugene Buck and Ron Fraess and returning councillors Bernice Capjack and Dwayne Yaremkevich, was sworn in by town manager Myron Goyan last Monday.

Coun. Yaremkevich was later sworn in as Elk Point's Deputy Mayor for the first nine months of the term.

The organizational meeting set the stage for the upcoming term. Council meetings will remain on the second and fourth Mondays of each month, except in the case of a Monday statutory holiday, when the meeting will be on the Tuesday, with meetings beginning at 7 p.m. The mayor and all councillors will continue to have signing authority.

Appointments to standing committees, boards and committees were determined, with representation on the MD of St. Paul Foundation coming down to a vote and all other assignments approved as designated by Mayor Tung.

The mayor explained the honorarium schedule, with the monthly rate of $600 for mayor and $400 for councillors, $100 for council and special meetings, $50 for functions in town and $100 for out-of-town meetings approved by council.

The travel-expenses were upgraded to more accurately reflect current prices, with accommodation raised from $65 to $100 per night without a receipt, or the actual amount with a receipt. Mileage was set at 50 cents per kilometer, while meals were set at breakfast, $10, lunch $15 and dinner $25 without receipts, or actual amounts with receipts.

Council approved a $600 expenditure per new councillor toward the purchase of laptop computers for their council work. Any additional cost is to be borne by the councillor.

With organization for the year complete, council got right down to work, with the upcoming Alberta Urban Municipalities Association conference first on their agenda. Mayor Tung and Couns. Capjack, Fraess and Yaremkevich will attend, while Coun. Buck said he would wait until next year to attend the annual event.

Heritage partners re-establishing ties

By VICKI BROOKER
Review Staff

The first meeting of the Lakeland Heritage Partners in almost two years was held at Fort George and Buckingham House interpretive centre last week, in hopes of revitalizing the group and getting back to work on making its goals a reality.

More than 25 museums, historic sites and history-related groups were invited to the meeting, with seven of those sending representation, including the host site.

Heritage Partners president Marvin Bjornstad said the group "grew out of the Iron Horse Trail. We spent three years trying to start it, and did some communicating. We met here in 2008, and while we didn't have a formal structure, we have had some ongoing projects."

At those earlier meetings, the group set out goals and objectives, established a connection with Alberta's Lakeland DMO, set membership fees, made up a contact list, took a familiarization tour of some of the museums and held meetings in them, did some advertising together, and became aware of each other's projects, he said.

The group's vision is to actively coordinate the promotion of regional history by encouraging the continued development of the members and their heritage product, while their mission is as "a regional, cooperative group that promotes awareness of history by fostering active development, communication and sharing among member heritage groups."

The goals and objectives were reviewed briefly, and each participant had the opportunity to report on new developments at their location. Cold Lake Museum, for example, recently received provincial historic sites designation as a Cold War era installation. The four-part museum, covering air force, pioneer, Aboriginal and oil industry history, has entered a new partnership with the local high school, with students interviewing seniors from the area's original families and retired oil workers and creating podcasts that will be featured in museum displays.

Bjornstad outlined Elk Point Historical Society's plans to frame a collection of maps, the first two of them now on display in Elk Point Municipal Library's program room.

Marjorie Scott spoke about the Heinsburg Community Development Society's progress on restoring the community's original train station. The society got off to a slow start but are now going full speed ahead on repairs to the building's foundation and reconstruction of the platform.

Numerous ideas for cross-promotion were brought forward, from sharing displays and holding joint events to production of a newsletter that would communicate new developments and upcoming events among the members and the establishment of a website where the public could find out more about the sites.

Familiarization tours to view museums and historic sites were also thought to be a good way to provide first-hand knowledge about the other locations, in another cross-promotion effort.

The group hopes to meet again early in 2011 to work on projects the coming season.

Council sworn in

The town did not receive any tenders for purchase and removal of the former Christian Community Church building, however they did receive a request from the church board asking for a one-month extension of their occupation, as the renovations to the former fire hall are taking longer than expected. The extension was approved, and council agreed to advertise the structure for tenders to salvage after the church vacates the premises.

Council's final item of business was a discussion of industrial park services, which had previously been tabled so the new council could have input into the decisions.

Rural home destroyed by fire

Frost still lingered in the treetops Sunday behind smoking embers that are all that remains of the Spring Park district home of Rob and Melinda Heathcote and family. The couple quickly and safely evacuated their family, visiting teens and pets after waking to find their attic ablaze. Neighbours and family members rallied to help remove vehicles from the garage and move the family's holiday trailer a safe distance from the flames, however the spreading flames prevented them from saving the rest of their possessions. Elk Point Volunteer Fire Department rushed to the site but ran out of water before the blaze could be extinguished.

Direct Energy expands service, gives consumers options

CALGARY, ALBERTA - More energy options will soon be available to residential customers in St. Paul, Elk Point and surrounding areas, which are part of the AltaGas service territory. Direct Energy, a leading energy retailer offering choice and stability in electricity and natural gas products, is expanding service on Nov. 1, 2010. While consumers in St. Paul and Elk Point have had the ability to choose their electricity retailer in the past, it will be the first time residential customers will be able to choose Direct Energy as a natural gas retailer for their homes.

"Direct Energy believes all consumers should have the power to choose who supplies energy to their homes and businesses," said Tanis Kozak, Vice President and General Manager, Direct Energy. "We're excited to be introducing Direct Energy's natural gas products for the first time to residential customers in the AltaGas service territory. It's a big day for customers and for Direct Energy."

Currently, customers in the AltaGas territory are supplied by the regulated rate, which is unpredictable and changes each month. This can sometimes make planning for energy costs a difficult task for homeowners.

With Direct Energy's fixed-price energy options, consumers will have the ability to make a choice about who they buy their energy from, what price they will pay and for how long. By locking in to a fixed-price plan that fits their needs, consumers are afforded the peace-of-mind and stability that comes with knowing what price they will pay over the long term.

Direct Energy has created special products, called First Choice, which are only available to customers in the AltaGas territory, including the lowest price they have ever offered on a natural gas product in Alberta since entering the market in 2004. Customers are eligible to choose either or both of the following First Choice options: a 12-month natural gas plan that includes a fixed-price of $4.99 per GJ, and/or a 12-month electricity product that includes a fixed-price of $6.99 per kWh.

Direct Energy contracts have no exit fees, give customers the ability to combine natural gas and electricity bills into one consolidated bill. If Direct Energy has a lower offer available in the AltaGas area within six months from the contract start date, they will automatically reduce the price charged to consumers. No matter what happens in the market, these prices will never go up during the life of the contract.

Direct Energy is one of North America's largest energy and energy-related services providers offering stability and choice in natural gas and electricity plans; sales and servicing of heating, ventilation and air conditioning (HVAC) equipment; production and generation of natural gas and power. Direct Energy provides customers with choice and support in managing their energy costs through a portfolio of innovative products and services.

Direct Energy strives to be a good corporate citizen in markets in which they operate and have sponsored the Alberta Volunteer of the Year Award for six years, in partnership with the Alberta Weekly Newspapers Association (AWNA), which serves many of the same communities as the AltaGas territory. This program has allowed Direct Energy to make financial contributions to non-profit organizations across the province and recognize the hard work of volunteers that make communities better places to live.

EDITORIAL

Get serious

With the fun and hilarity of Halloween behind us, it's time to tackle serious subjects.

November is Family Violence Prevention Month, and also is the month when we pay tribute to those who sought and continue to seek to quell violence between countries, in wars and uprisings around the globe.

Family violence is an all too common factor in today's world, as people hurt those to whom they are closest. Stress, alcohol or drug use and family history are often contributing factors in the devastation caused and the lives impacted by violence against family members. It has traditionally been considered a matter of family pride to keep family disagreements a secret, but this will not stop the physical injuries and mental anguish. Victims don't have to go on a tell-all television talk show, but they should seek and accept the help they need to stop the violence against them and others.

We may be unable to stop wars between countries, but we can do something to stop situations that lead to wars in our own lives. It's time to call a truce.

WAY BACK WHEN...

Water, workload, entrepreneurial zeal

HERE'S THE NEWS THAT MADE THE HEADLINES OF THE LAKELAND REVIEW AND ELK POINT REVIEW FOR THE WEEK OF NOV. 2 IN...

1985

MLA John Drobot presented town council with a $623,263 advance on a $1.2 million Alberta Municipal Water Supply and Sewage Treatment grant, which would go toward replacement of the town's main water supply line and a major upgrade of the water supply plant. Council rewrote their debenture bylaw to allow debenture borrowing for the main water supply line and for water lines, curb and gutter on 51 Street and 49 Avenue.

1990

Town council was preparing for winter but looking forward to spring, with fairgrounds development and mural park completion sharing the agenda with lack of funds for a new rescue van, the curling club's financial woes, and unsuccessful drilling for water at the golf course. Dr. Drew Ramful and wife Jan were warmly welcomed as they arrived in Elk Point to open a new medical practice.

1995

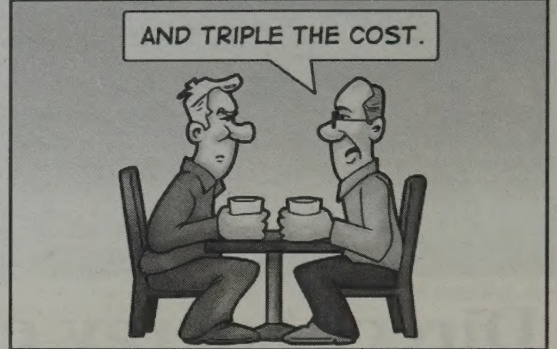

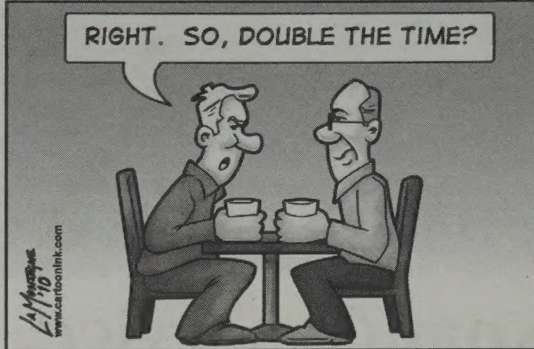

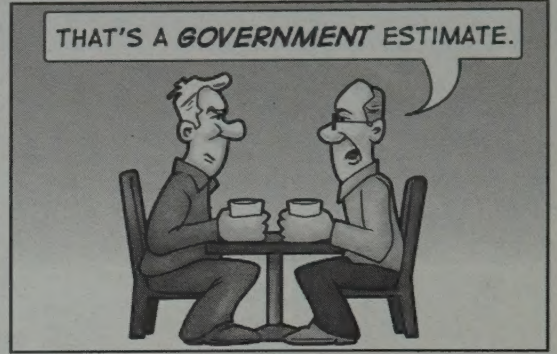

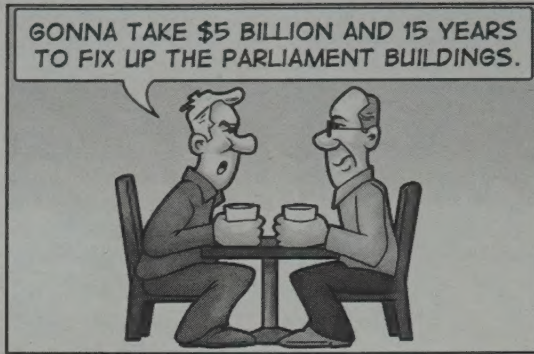

Elk Point Insurance was named Elk Point's Small Business of the Year. The newly reorganized town council agreed to cut back their schedule to one meeting per month, due to a decreased workload in the past year, a move that would also decrease the honoraria paid to mayor and council.

2000

Elk Pointy Chamber of Commerce hosted a trade show and information fair, with 25 businesses taking part in the evening, where chamber president Eugene Buck congratulated the participants on their "entrepreneurial zeal." Elk Point Royal Canadian Legion was seriously in need of new members to take part in their work of helping veterans and the community.

2005

The chamber's Extravaganza Committee planned a longer route for their Winter Wonderland Parade, passing the health care centre and Heritage Lodge and turning south on 54 Street to return to the staging area. The community took up the torch to carry on the Remembrance Day ceremonies after the closure of the Elk Point Royal Canadian Legion.

GUEST COLUMN

Family violence prevention

November is Family Violence Prevention Month. During this year's 'END the Silence. STOP the Violence,' campaign, Albertans are encouraged to take action to help end the cycle of family violence. People may hear or see something they feel is not quite right with a family, friend, neighbor or co-worker. If you think someone you know is experiencing family violence, reach out by calling the Family Violence Info Line at 310-1818, toll-free 24/7.

Alberta has one of the highest reported rates of spousal abuse of all provinces in Canada yet only 28 per cent of spousal assault victims turn to the police for help. Exposure to family violence was the second most common form of maltreatment accounting for 23 per cent of all substantiated cases in Alberta in 2003. Family violence and bullying have devastating social, health and economic consequences for families, communities and society. That is why the Government of Alberta continues to take strong action against it.

The 2004 report, 'Alberta Roundtable on Family Violence and Bullying Finding Solutions Together', is the Government of Alberta's Strategy for the Prevention of Family Violence and Bullying. This strategy supports the Government of Alberta's priority to reduce crime and promote strong, safe and vibrant communities. The Alberta Roundtable on Family Violence and Bullying was held on May 7, 2004 in Calgary. Over 3,500 Albertans participated in the Roundtable process and challenged us to work with them to put an end to family violence and bullying. Its goal was to develop recommendations for an action plan to address family violence and bullying in Alberta. The report, 'Finding Solutions Together,' was developed by government, based on what was heard during the Roundtable. It outlines key areas for action and long-term objectives, and highlights activities that are currently underway or in development with community partners. There are five key areas for action in the report: social change; provincial leadership; a collaborative, coordinated community response; services and supports; and accountability.

from the FCSS desk

The 2008 'Taking Action on Family Violence and Bullying: Report to Albertans' highlights priority recommendation implemented since the Roundtable and how government and communities have been working to address family violence and bullying. Some highlights from the last four years include: amending the Protection against Family Violence Act to provide better support to victims of family violence, increasing funding to women's shelters (from $15 million in 2004-2005 to more than $25 million in 2008-09) and implementing the Provincial Family Violence Program including eight domestic violence courts, counseling for mandated offenders, enforcement and supervision of court orders, and community coordination and victim supports.

November 14 -20, 2010 is National Bullying Awareness Week. We all have a role to play in bullying prevention. Bullying behavior is unacceptable at any time and in any situation and isn't a normal part of growing up. In fact, bullying can leave scars that last a lifetime. The web site www.bullyfreealberta.ca helps parents, teens and community members take control of this issue by giving them the tools they need to prevent or intervene in a bullying situation. It is a one-stop resource filled with helpful information about how to deal with bullying. You will also find a link to the kid's website, www.teamheroes.ca. By working together, we can create a bully-free Alberta.

Basically, Albertans are encouraged to share the responsibility of helping to prevent bullying, and to change behavior that may cause hurt to others. Albertans who would like more information and advice about how to address bullying are encouraged to call the toll-free, 24-hour Bullying Helpline (1-888-456-2323) or visit www.bullyfreealberta.ca. The website features prevention strategies, fact sheets, information about cyberbullying and Internet Safety, and links to other interactive websites that teach children and youth about bullying and how to stop it.

Whether it is family violence or bullying, END the Silence. STOP the Violence. End the cycle.

November is Crime Prevention Month

CANADA SAFETY COUNCIL

November is National Crime Prevention and Community Safety Month, and the Canada Safety Council advises you, and all Canadians, to get to know your neighbours better. By building stronger communities, we build safer communities.

Many people stick to themselves, but creating bonds with your neighbours can be very beneficial if there's ever a problem. Neighbours can be great friends, and be there when you need them most. They can help you take in your mail when you're away, or call the police if they notice suspicious activity on your property.

While you may not be able to change the neighbourhood in which you live, you can change the experience you have in your own neighbourhood by getting more involved with those around you and taking pride in the area in which you live.

Families frolic!

Coach, hockey dad remembered

Today's story is dedicated to a close friend and solid member of our community, who left us way too early.

Jim Vinge Jr. was a great father and family man who loved his wife Leanne and children Braden "Mr. Scrooge", Kelsey "the Champ" and "Hayley's Comet", he loved life, a volunteer who you could always count on when you needed a hand with a heavy lift and I will miss him dearly, especially in the time booth where we worked many a hockey game together. He would play the music and I ran the clock, and he loved playing jokes me by saying "Start the Clock" when it was already going or "Stop the Clock" when it was already stopped, just to see my panic reaction, or sneak the mike on to catch me saying something I shouldn't, but his favorite thing was blasting the air horn that he rigged up for provincial games, long and loud when the Avalanche would score, and especially if the other fans complained, he would say to me, "What do you mean, we can't blow the horn? This is our barn, and I'm blowing the horn!"

On a foggy Saturday morning the Vermilion Tiger traveled into our town lurking for what they may have considered an easy prey to feast on, and last year at this time, that may have been the case, but not this year, and even though the Tigers picked up the two points in the end, the Avalanche Novice One team was anything but easy pickings and didn't give up with out a fight to the end.

With his size, he covers a lot of the net, big towering goalie Parker Allen showed some great potential between the pipes in his debut, he wasn't able stop them all, but he'd stop the first shot, the second, third or more rebounds, before the puck would finally cross the line, the Michelin Man facing 38 shots, and that's enough rubber to replace a tire on his dad's Kenworth.

Dylan Ference was turning on the jets, undressing the Tiger goalie and scoring the lone marker for the Avalanche, Dylan's goal coming on a nice feed from Jace Stafford and Slader Hardcastle. Dangling with the puck, Dylan had mega other chances in this game but couldn't bury them.

Hayden Ludlage, who's been fighting the flu bug for the last two weeks and still wasn't feeling 100 per cent, had more shots on net than I could count, the workhorse Hayden really cranked up when it came to back checking, working both ends of the rink.

Colton Van Maaron almost scoring from the slot on one of his many opportunities, then later in the game trucking along on a breakaway he blew a tire and went down. Colton better go down to see the Michelin Man!

Ronan Poulin, Brandon Schaap and Brandon Goertzen all turned on the afterburners and did some super fore-checking forcing the turn over in the neutral zone.

Big solid D Man, Danny Cardinal looks like a natural defenseman, guarding the blue line along the boards, keeping the puck inside the line and keeping the pressure on the opposition.

The tandem of Jenna Poitras and Fawn Ockerman mixing it up with the boys, digging along the boards and scrapping in the open ice area, and not once intimidated by the eye of the tiger.

Over in Cold Lake on Saturday morning, Austin "Ozzy" Stafford, who plays for the St. Paul Tier 3 Peewees scored a special goal that he said was for his Uncle Jim.

Our midget boys who play with the St. Paul Canadiens were on the winning end in a rough, penalty filled game (110 minutes total), 9 to 7 over Lloydminster. "Dan the man" Danny Garret with two goals, Jared Vallee with the game's opening goal and an assist, Dakota "Doc" Amyotte adding the second goal and two assists, and the big point man Brett "the Moose" Ockerman with a helper as well, Wyatt Dewan never faltering in goal. An excellent effort for the short Canadiens bench against a big and aggressive team, with the Elk Point imports more than doing their part.

And now for the K.A. Campbell quote of the week. "When I was a little boy, I wanted to be a baseball player and join the circus. With the Yankees I've accomplished both." Last week's answer to: "I believe there are certain things that cannot be bought: loyalty, friendship, health, love and an American League pennant." - Edward Bennett Williams. Tories clamp down on human smuggling

By SHAUNA BURKE
Review Contributor

Two ships carrying 568 ethnic Tamil asylum seekers from Sri Lanka that docked Vancouver in August has stimulated the Federal Government of Canada to try to crack down on incidences of human smuggling with the introduction of Bill C-49, Preventing Human Smugglers from Abusing Canada's Immigration System Act.

"Our government is taking action to prevent the abuse of Canada's immigration system by human smugglers," said MP for Westlock-St. Paul Brian Storseth in a press release. "The legislation introduced will send a clear message: Canada opens its doors to those who work hard and play by the rules while cracking down on those who seek to take advantage of our generosity and abuse our fair and welcoming immigration system."

The bill targets those assisting in shipping foreign nationals, or human smugglers, with fines of up to $75,000 and one year in jail. According to Storseth, the bill will also penalize those trying to jump ahead of the immigration cue by "ensuring mandatory detention of illegal immigrants for up to one year to allow for the determination of identity, inadmissibility and illegal activity."

Storseth clarified that the legislation is not intended to block or discourage legitimate refugee claims. "Canadians are known around the world for being a generous and open society. Each year, hundreds of thousands of immigrants from around the world come to Canada in search of opportunity and a better life. These are people who work hard and play by the rules."

According to Rob Fox, Liberal candidate for Westlock-St. Paul, the proposed legislation risks penalizing legitimate refugees, a view supported by Amnesty International.

"This particular bill only targets people that arrive on mass," said Gloria Nafziger, refugee coordinator for

Amnesty International. "The problem is that it allows for the immediate and arbitrary detention of somebody for a year without review ... (which is) contrary to the Canadian Charter and violates the Refugee Convention."

Nafziger said that currently if individuals arrive in Canada and can not prove who they are, they are detained but that detention is reviewed monthly and "that is the way it should be. Once you have provided documentation that proves who you are, then you can be released from detention."

She said it seems like the Canadian government is trying to send the message that asylum seekers should stay away.

Fox said that the government is fear mongering by using the example of the two ships that arrived in BC, because there is no evidence the ship's passengers are not legitimate refugees.

"To date, none of the refugees have been found to be classified as terrorists," said Fox. "Canada must work with other countries in troubled areas of the world so that refugees wouldn't feel the need to risk their lives and spend all their savings to come."

But Storseth felt the legislation will help prevent the abuse of Canada's immigration system by human smugglers, while continuing to offer protection to what he called the world's most vulnerable.

"We know that there are more ships out there that have the capability of bringing thousands of more people to our shores illegally," said Storseth. "While adhering to our human rights obligations as a government, we have to take some serious steps ... to make Canada less of an easy target."

Correction

In last week's story regarding the establishment of a Victim Services group in Elk Point, Maxine Fodness was identified as a County of St. Paul council representative. While she is a county councillor, she serves on the Victim Services board as an individual volunteer, not a representative of the county. Our apologies for the error.

Crime Prevention Month

We're all busy, and getting to know people in your neighbourhood takes time. So mix your everyday activities with ones that promote introductions. For example, say "hello" to neighbours when the opportunity presents itself. Sit on your front porch to read or take up gardening. If you live in an apartment, spend more time on your balcony or a common space near your building. Being outside naturally leads to conversations with those arriving home or leaving. Building social ties leads to stronger community bonds.

Knowing the people around you can also bring a sense of security. If you need something – a cup of sugar when you're baking or someone to call the police if they see someone lurking outside your home – it's nice to know you can depend on those around you and they can depend on you.

Neighbourhood Watch and Citizens on Patrol are programs to help neighbours watch out for neighbours. The program thrives on cooperation. By simply getting to know the neighbours around you, you'll be well positioned to recognize someone or something that's suspicious. The programs aim to get citizens involved in discouraging and preventing crime at the local level. The ultimate success if the programs depends largely on a commitment to cooperate between area residents and the police – and most importantly, between residents themselves.

Your neighbours know who you are, what kind of car you drive, and may be the first to notice a suspicious person at your door or window. A police officer patrolling your community may not recognize a stranger in your yard, but your neighbour will.

Remarkable run for Lions

BY GREGORY YAPP

Review Contributor

The St. Paul Lions ended its remarkable Wheatland Football League championship run after a loss against the Lloydminster Composite Barons last Saturday afternoon in an away game. The final score was 37 - 14 for the Barons, who now head into the final championship game against the Grand Centre Royals.

The score at halftime was 22 - 7, in favour of the Barons after three touchdowns by the Barons, and one by the Lions, courtesy of Mark Proskiw in the first quarter.

"We played them quite well," said Todd Tanasichuk, the Lions head coach, in a phone interview on Sunday. "We made a couple of key turnovers, and two plays later, they scored a touchdown, and we were down 0 - 7 in the first quarter."

The Lions responded and scored one touchdown to tie it up, but the Barons immediately came back to score another touchdown.

In the second half, both teams traded touchdowns again. "We were still down by two touchdowns," explained Tanasichuk. "Late in the game, we gambled deep in our own end, and we gave them the ball with real good field position and they scored again to end it at 37 - 14."

Tanasichuk went on to comment that the Lions played a good game. Tanasichuk also explained that back in the spring, the team looked like it had a legitimate chance of going far. However, injuries of certain key players hurt the Lions' chances during the season.

John Lumby, the Lions' offensive coach said that the Lions had a great season, and the team had a "terrific group" of players. "We had a lot of fun, and definitely made some noise."

Lumby said that the team had some key injuries which limited its success this season. "However, I'm proud of the boys ... the Grade 12s are moving on, and they'll definitely be missed," he said.

Both coaches are looking forward to next season with the new crop of prospects coming from the Bengals. That team decisively beat bitter rivals the Lloydminster Chargers on the same day to make it as Wheatland Bantam Football League champions, and will be going to the provincials.

"We're excited with the Bengals' prospects moving up to the Lions," said Lumby. "There's 20 Grade 9 on the Bengals, and they're all good players ... there's some talent there for sure."
